

Dependency Override Application Information

1. What is a dependency override?

A dependency override occurs when a Financial Aid administrator overrides the requirement for parent information due to extreme circumstances such as documented abuse or abandonment by the parent. A dependency override at the University of Hartford is determined on a case-by-case basis depending on the situation, the supporting documentation provided, and whether the situation is reason enough for a student to be considered independent rather than dependent.

Dependency override applications must be approved yearly.

2. What conditions do not merit a dependency override?

None of the conditions below, separately or in combination, qualify as unusual circumstances or merit a dependency override. We will not be able to approve an override for the following circumstances:

- Parents refuse to provide information on the FAFSA and/or for the Verification process.
- Parents do not claim the student as a dependent for income tax purposes.
- Parents refuse to contribute to a student's education (i.e. pay tuition/fees, etc.)
- A dependent student who demonstrates self-sufficiency.
- A student who does not wish to communicate with parents.
- A student previously considered independent for financial aid purposes, but who is not meeting the 2017-2018 criteria.

3. What happens next?

Once we receive all of the documentation required, your application will be reviewed by the Professional Judgment Committee.

If additional documentation is required you will be notified via University of Hartford email.

Documents must be submitted within 20 business days from the date of notification. If your appeal is approved, your FAFSA will be processed as an independent student for this academic year. If your appeal is denied, you will be required to correct your FAFSA with parental information and a parent signature.

4. What can you do if your parents refuse to help?

The federal government considers it the family's responsibility to pay for higher education but may provide financial assistance if the family is unable to pay the full cost of education. It is an unfortunate reality that a parent refusal may prevent students from paying for their education until they meet the independent student definition. Here is some additional information to share with your parents.

- Remind your parents that submitting their information on FAFSA does not obligate them to pay your bill or provide you support, but their refusal will prevent you from receiving most financial aid.
- If your parents are concerned about their privacy, remind them that the confidentiality of student records, including financial aid information, is protected by the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). The University of Hartford cannot release information unless previously approved under FERPA regulations.
